Will the 'Christchurch Call' eliminate violent content online? | Inside Story

Another threat. I would suggest taking down the innocents (obviously) and a quick scan of the archive shows that most convictions seem to be for petty and large drug crimes with a lot of "alleged" ties to various extremist groups. A pretext for doxing people you judge far right.

DETAILS

"Patrick Strickland is an incisive and relentless journalist who has spent years immersed in the global currents of rebellion, and in Alerta! Alerta! he provides a clear-eyed portrait of Europe's anti-fascist resistance that is utterly essential in the era of Trump." Molly Crabapple, author of Drawing Blood

"As a fascist darkness descends over Europe, Patrick Strickland uncovers the bars, squats, fight clubs, and street corners where resistance burns brightest. Each page of his journey breathes with the tumultuous struggles of brave anti-fascists who risk imprisonment, assault, and even death to take a stand. Though struggles differ from Germany to Greece, from Slovakia to Italy, all anti-fascists agree that 'never again' remains an essential theme, a vision of hope for the future." Booklist ★★★★★ antifascistnetwork.org/contact/

The basics:

A group needs an email address that can be safely publicised so other anti-fascists can make contact. Most AFN groups use a version of yourtowntantifascists@riseup.net.

A group should meet regularly. This helps anti-fascists react more effectively to fascist threats; it keeps activists working together and enables the planning of future activities.

It is helpful to have a mix of skills in your group. Not everyone has to be a readymade confident street activist. AFN also relies on people who are willing to send emails and print leaflets.

As stated in another thread, this has led to @Die_Gruenen adapting US style identity politics and left wing populism - mirroring the AfD on the right. Sure, #Merkel destroyed her biggest political opponent for personal gain but at what cost to German democracy? We'll see.

However, years of mismanagement by the @spdbt and years of careful dissection by #Merkel has reduced the SPD to a shell of a political party. The consequence has been that for any left wing party to survive they have had to push further to the extremes of the far left.

DIE WIRTSCHAFTS-, WÄHRUNGS- UND SO- ZIALUNION VERTIEFEN

Jede*r Europäer*in soll sich frei entfalten können. Niemand wird zurückgelassen. Es geht fair und gerecht zu. Diesen Anspruch haben wir an Europa. Alles in allem hat die Europäische Union den Wohlstand auf dem Kontinent vergrößert. Aber Anspruch und Wirklichkeit passen nicht zusammen. Die Lebensverhältnisse zwischen den Mitgliedstaaten, zwischen Nord und Süd, Ost und West, klaffen auseinander. Genauso ist es innerhalb der einzelnen Länder. Und die ökonomische Globalisierung macht es immer schwieriger, soziale Gerechtigkeit zu organisieren. Etwa wenn große Konzerne versuchen, Staaten gegeneinander auszuspielen, und die Länder in einen Wettbewerb um die niedrigsten Steuern und die niedrigsten Löhne geraten. Oder wenn Unternehmen und Vermögende sich ihrer Verantwortung für das Gemeinwesen mehr und mehr entziehen oder erst gar nicht stellen. Diese Situation wird nun noch verschärft, weil die Digitalisierung die Art, wie wir leben und arbeiten, radikal verändern wird.

In den letzten Jahren und Jahrzehnten war in der Europäischen Union sowie in vielen Mitgliedstaaten die Auffassung vorherrschend, dass die Ökonomie Vorrang vor dem Politischen hat, dass Regeln und Eingriffe in den freien Markt schädlich sind, dass es nur vom Willen und Vermögen des Einzelnen abhängt, ob sie oder er glücklich wird. Diese Auffassung war blind für die gesellschaftlichen Voraussetzungen, die unsere Leben prägen und die es einigen schwerer und anderen leichter machen. In der Folge ist die Schere zwischen Arm und Reich weit auseinandergegangen. Vor allem die einseitige Sparpolitik während der Eurokrise hat in einigen Ländern eine ganze Generation ihrer Zukunft beraubt und die Europäische Union gespalten. Das

SPD-Wahlprogramm zur Europawahl in Einfacher Sprache

Was macht Europa stark? Die Antwort ist: Wir Menschen in Europa halten zusammen

Die Spitzenkandidaten der SPD für die Europawahl 2019

Kommt zusammen für ein soziales Europa!

Mehr soziale Sicherheit und bessere Lebensverhältnisse überall in Europa

Kommt zusammen für die Jugend in Europa!

Kommt zusammen und macht Europa stark!

Kommt zusammen für ein soziales Europa!

In der Vergangenheit hat die Europäische Union vor allem in der Wirtschaftspolitik zusammengearbeitet. So sind für viele Europäer die Lebensverhältnisse besser geworden. Gemeinsam haben wir also in Europa schon viel geschafft. Aber Menschen leben in Europa noch immer in ganz unterschiedlichen Lebensverhältnissen.

In manchen Gegenden gibt es zu wenig Arbeit. Dort leben besonders viele Menschen in Armut.

Wir wollen, dass in Europa alle Menschen von ihrer Arbeit gut leben können. Das Einkommen aus der Arbeit muss gerecht verteilt sein. Und die Menschen sollen auch mehr über ihre eigenen Arbeitsverhältnisse mitbestimmen können.

Wir müssen unsere Mitmenschen in unserer Gemeinschaft in jeder Lebenssituation vor Armut und sozialer Not schützen. Das gilt zum Beispiel bei Krankheit und im Rentenalter.

The more American politicians backed by hyper partisan media outlets make identity politics (left or right) front and centre of their campaigns, the more they will divide the nation. That should be a key lesson from the middle section of this decade.

YouTube is particularly concerning. The "Recommendation" and "Recently Uploaded" are heavily tailored to your previous search history. Watching politically orientated videos quickly leads to a barrage of similar content. All too easy to get locked in an ideological bubble.

wikivisually.com/wiki/The_Troub... Where #LiamNeeson grew up is a good place to begin to understand where his views on in- groups & out-groups & his response to attack from an out-group were formed. More telling of the man is his ability rationally challenge this socialisation.

youtube.com/watch?v=Ze66N6... Terrific response by @officialbarnesy to the #LiamNeeson controversy. Also can't forget that Neeson grew up in a segregated province in a time of plentiful hate. Seeing the world through the lens of extreme in- & out- groups was his norm. He challenged it.

Students @uni_augsburg hope to improve teaching and learning in German schools. Feedback very welcome! youtube.com/watch?v=DzODLW...

Eoin Lenihan This video was produced by students at the Universität Augsburg in one day. It was the outcome for our seminar on Internationally-Minded Education which took place on the weekend of 9-11th June 2017. Students were tasked to answer our seminar guiding question: "What can we learn from global school systems to make teaching and learning more effective in German schools?" To achieve success students were required to identify a key issue in German education, conduct interviews with educators from around the world, conduct in depth research and suggest practical solutions. In addition, they had to learn sound and video editing skills so that they could present their findings. All of this was achieved in one day. I am proud of their work. I hope you will leave feedback!

I'd imagine so. Of course there is a wider societal taboo but there seems to be a fear of admitting it to co-workers/management.

@pjo90 True. I think diversity of Keynotes is important. And best when multi regional. Do you find good representation from beyond UK?

Dr. Eoin Lenihan @EoinLenihan · 8 May 2016Replying to @JoeOHaraDCU

@pjo90 I am out of the scene. Good to hear there is diversity.

Dr. Eoin Lenihan @EoinLenihan · 8 May 2016Replying to @EoinLenihan

@pjo90 And of course that is not a commentary on the quality of those Keynotes. Rather a question about Irish ed.

Dr. Eoin Lenihan @EoinLenihan · 8 May 2016Replying to @JoeOHaraDCU

@pjo90 I have noticed that many Irish ed conferences rely heavily on UK Keynotes. I have often wondered about this. As you say - context.

Dr. Eoin Lenihan @EoinLenihan · 8 May 2016Replying to @EoinLenihan

A passionate analysis of Ireland's teacher crisis by @annmarie3391 - In response to eoinlenihan.weebly.com/blog/-in-irela... #edchatie

Ann Marie O'Brien

Eoin, I couldn't agree more with the sentiments expressed in this blog. Without doubt it is a scandal that so many Irish graduates are being trained as second level teachers without a realistic prospect of employment into the future in Ireland. I attended the Teaching Council's Festival of teaching at the RDS, Dublin in October 2014 (Feilte). At one particular session a number of newly qualified teachers vented their frustrations at not being able to find work. Some had been working in industry for some years before deciding to retrain as teachers. They naively thought they were going to gain employment in Irish schools once qualified given that there were several teacher training programmes in the state. However, having qualified and sought in vain for work, those who spoke were disillusioned and angry. As it happened, the current Minister for Education, Jan O'Sullivan, was at Feilte and spoke for a few minutes to the large gathering. She assured angry participants that there would be more teaching jobs nationwide in the next few years due to an increase in the student population. Further, she said that the Dept. of Education intended to consult with the Universities and the Teaching Council in relation to the issue of quotas. Perhaps, not surprisingly, given the rate some things happen in Ireland in the field of education, the quota issue hasn't been addressed yet. I wonder will it ever be addressed? I'm not convinced the political will is there to deal with the issue.

In terms of alternate employment for Irish graduates, opportunities in general are still quite limited since the economic collapse in 2008. And not every graduate has an interest in such areas as IT and medical research. However, leaving those points aside, I agree with you that a concerted effort needs to be made at second and third level to flag areas of employment that are not as saturated as teaching. At primary and second level I would love to see full time teachers having the opportunity to opt for reduced hours such as a 16 or 18 hour timetable, if it suited them, as opposed to the standard 22 hour arrangement. The only option at present to reduce one's hours is to teach 11 hours as a job sharer and given the pay cut that entails and the real possibility of having long periods of free time during the working day I think it deters some teachers from opting for it each year. On the other hand, a 16 or 18 hour timetable would still offer more breathing space in a typical working day without feeling like it's too much, provide participating teachers with a better salary than job-sharing for 11 hours and create more employment in the system for qualified teachers in need of experience. At least the new arrangement I've suggested would have some benefits.

New - Inclusion in Schools is about problem-solving not point-scoring

EdchatDE @EdchatDE · Oct 27

Q2 What arguments against inclusive schools do you know? #EDchatDE

A2: This is one of the main arguments heard in discussions. #EDchaDE

A2. Some parents and educators may feel that inclusive policies "hold strong students back". #edchatde

Those people would be wrong. 30+ years of educational research actually proves the opposite. Everyone improves.

Dr. Eoin Lenihan @EoinLenihan · 1 Sep 2015
Good way to provide choice digitally is to provide variety. Allow Ss choice of Apps and programmes once the objective is clear. #bfc530

Dr. Eoin Lenihan @EoinLenihan · 1 Sep 2015
Choice is important for classroom setup and especially for wall layout. Students control wall space. Always after group reflection. #bfc530

DID YOU KNOW?

ACCORDING TO THE UNIVERSITY OF SALFORD, FLEXIBILITY ACCOUNTS FOR 12% CLASSROOM DESIGN IMPACT

Where traditional rows of desks are used, participation is greatest within the teachers line of sight.

Teachers who do not have desks have been rated more likely to give individual attention and encourage different points of view.

Distance between students and seating are not random at group tables. Leaders and dominants choose specific seats.

DID YOU KNOW?

ACCORDING TO THE UNIVERSITY OF SALFORD, GOOD CLASSROOM DESIGN ACCOUNTS FOR 16% OF NEW STUDENT LEARNING

- Naturalness: light, temperature and air quality – accounting for half the learning impact
- Individualisation: ownership and flexibility – accounting for about a quarter
- Stimulation (appropriate level of): complexity and colour – again about a quarter.
